THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Senator Booth at Terre Haute

INDIANAPOLIS Sept 1.—Senator Newton Booth of California spoke to night at Terre Haute, and was greeted by a large audience it being his native place. In regard to the charge of being discourteous to the Independent party in not acknowledging his nomination to the vice presidency by them he said this was not true; that after receiving official notice he sent his declination to the committee and his suggestion was not made public until the vacancy was filled. His speech was mainly devoted to the consideration of different financial plans and he claimed it to be the duty of every one to put forward his views and that the true plan will finally appear The hard and the soft money men differ more as to the method and not about the general principles. Both agree that some form of credit will circulate as money and that the best bank notes we ever had are those secured by government bonds. All agree that there must be some plan of redemption and it is a matter of surprise how little difference there is in these plans. He favored a government bond convertible with the currency required Whoever believed that this measure or any other would make money abundant, so it can be earned without toil would be disappointed The seasons of speculative excitement when every body seems to get rich are followed by depression when labor has to bear the double burden of paying for past imprudence and for present support In this country so rich in natural resources and so intimate in its connection with the civilized world it is the contraction of business which contracts circulation and not the contraction of money which contracts business. He showed the fallacy of the idea that a demand for labor could be restored by Congress arbitrarily increasing the volume of currency An abundance of currency will not create that kind of business which is profitable to a community A good deal of the depression existing is the result of building railroads in advance of the wants of business at extravagant prices and by aid of State county and municipal bonds Well directed labor is the only true prosperity The amount of money in circulation depends on the real demand of business Its expansion and contraction are the effects of what we call good and hard times not the causes There is no escape from the inevitable law that for everything that is good full price must be paid sooner or later Referring to the prosperity during and after the war he claimed it was fictitious that revolutions come suddenly. It had long been in preparation and institutions and companies continued to do business whose insolvency was known only to themselves. The great failure of Jay Cooke & Co did not bury the public prosperity but only revealed its hollowness. You may have seen in the early spring a stream of water flowing from beneath a covering of snow The surface of the snow does not change from day to day though the water is silently melting it out beneath At length it disappears in an hour

Referring to Tilden & Hendricks he said Now my friends let me ask you if the rebellion had succeeded and the Confederacy been established and the present Democratic candidates for President and Vice President had gone down there and run for office could one utterance of theirs in their homes have been quoted to prevent any Confederate from voting for them? Would not their Northern record have made them very proper candidates for the highest offices in the gift of the Southern Confederacy?

Speech of Carl Schurz.

CINCINNATI Aug 31.—Hon Carl Schurz made his first English speech in the Ohio campaign to night at Robinson's Opera House building The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity and the points in his speech were warmly applauded.

Starting with a congratulation to the American people that both the great parties of the country had made reform their watchword and battle cry, Mr Schurz said he should address his remarks to the class to which he belonged—independent voters Independent voters owing to the condition of political times, were compelled to choose between two candidates and after careful consideration hampered by no party discipline nor prejudice, he had formed the deliberate opinion that the true interests of the two great questions which claim the attention of the country, administrative reform and currency, demanded the election of Rutherford B. Hayes The foremost question would be the only one discussed to-night. Civil service reform, not long ago was considered the idle fancy of theorists; it is now a recognized necessity It is vain to belittle the evils that have befallen us. Mr Schurz quoted from the speech of Geo F Hoar in his opening speech in the Belknap impeachment trial to show what an honest man thought of civil service and its corruptions—the disgrace and shame of country He might have mentioned penitentiaries inhabited by revenue officers or the defaulters and embezzlers of government funds in all public positions. The people's alarm was warranted by the facts "Let no guilty man escape" is a good watchword and should be carried out by the organization of civil service on a higher plane A better moral spirit would be infused into our public concerns and corruption prevented He pointed out that the crowd of office seekers was a greater future danger to the republic than was the rebellion. Suppose some of our wise fathers—Washington, Adams Jefferson and Hamilton should see the work of a hundred years—the whole machinery of government confused by the accession of a new President the dismissals of tried officers the rush for public place—Congressmen transformed to office peddlers—the appointment of corrupt and unworthy men in the place of honest and valuable ones because of party claims possessed by the former Officers making hay while the sun shines and corrupt practices whitewashed by the guardians of public interest and virtue—what would our fathers say to this? Never was civil service so utterly absurd and barbarous in its inception ominous in its operation and demoralizing in its effect. The remedy is not in abolishing one set of officers and substituting another but the party spoil system must be eradicated first. Doubtless there are many honest officials and their credit is great, but rascality is constantly growing The war did not create the corruption existing under the spoils system but merely gave impetus to it. The spoils system was fathered by a Democratic President, and the Democratic party have faithfully nursed it. Under Republican rule also that system has borne abundant fruit He had nothing to retract of whatever he said concerning the abuses of the last two administrations The Republican platform gave evidence of party weakness in expressing an indiscriminate approval of Grant's administration America's boasted vigor will not save her from the effects of a constant debauch Decay is inevitable unless morals reform The spoils system corrupts integrity and brings a long train of evil It must therefore be [illegible] There are two requisites for honesty in office viz appointment founded on capability and on party distinction, and a distinct understanding that official tenure is to be governed by honesty and efficiency and freedom from partisan influence Persons must not be indiscriminately turned out on the advent of a new administration nor be appointed at the direction of party leaders Continuance in office must be secured by fidelity by not allowing Congressmen to interfere in appointments and by determining the qualifications of candidates by well regulated public methods.

Mr Schurz next examined the prospects of securing such a change from the two parties He would not question Mr Tilden's motives His courageous and persevering combat with the canal ring and consequent reform prove them but if elected he would eject corrupt officials together with good ones Hayes might do the same either would doubtless clear the service from corruption

Schurz reviewed the life of Hayes who he said was not his favorite but he declared that he was of the highest personal integrity the purest life and a most efficient administrator This was the verdict of his opponents and it is an empty partisan fling to say that his administration would be a continuation of the present regime He quoted from the letter of Hayes commencing "More than forty years ago" and ending with the clause "will be employed to establish this reform" The speaker complimented the straightforwardness and unmistakable meaning of the utterance Continuance in office did not mean arrogance and aristocracy as the Democrats assert but dutiful observance of public trusts He defended Hayes ideas of reform against the various attacks made on them and declared they held out the highest hope for reform under him He next quoted from Tilden's letter beginning "The counsel is justly affirming that reform is necessary" and closing "whenever practicable of proved competency and fidelity He characterized this as intangible, promising nothing, and in striking contrast with Hayes. Tilden's letter says the offices are to be filled with Democrats—all the rest is vague and shadowy He asked what element in the Democratic party would urge Governor Tilden on to reform if elected He could see none Only Senator Gordon of the Democrats had submitted a proposition for reform of the revenue service and commendation thereof came universally from the Republican and independent press alone The accession of Democrats would be signalized by the most furious rush for office ever known especially in the south This was instanced in the Democratic House. The Democratic party is moreover seriously divided among itself on the finance question and others and will trouble the country with its quarrels if put in power Thunder will be the result

Mr Schurz declared that Hayes would if elected employ every constitutional means of carrying out the line of policy laid down in his letter He would improve the public service in every way he could and stand to everything that Tilden could not do and would not if he could support. He [illegible] Grant would have been if he had attempted this programme by a strong element in Congress and by the people he might displease many in his party but would please the honest masses The speaker said the opponents of Hayes were as utterly at a loss to discover a flaw in his method of reform as in his character He concluded with an appeal to independent voters to vote for Hayes and reform as the only means of securing the advantages which they all had labored for and prayed for and as being a blow struck for the restoration of virtue and purity of government worthy this hundredth anniversary of our national prosperity

After the meeting Mr Schurz was serenaded at the St. Nicholas hotel, and made an appropriate response.

The Servian War.

LONDON Aug 31 A correspondent of the Times at Belgrade telegraphs Within the last two or three days heavy guns have been sent to Chuprija to strengthen the second line of defense If Alexinatz is taken I should not place much reliance in any defense the Servians might subsequently make except in the way of mere bush fighting

Examination by Russian English and Servian surgeons confirms the statement that a large number of Servians wounded themselves in order to avoid battle This practice has been made the subject of a strong report by the medical staff

It is stated the Turks have received a siege train from Nische and in default of armistice something very decisive may be expected at Alexinatz

A dispatch from Vienna says at the conference at Belgrade where Prince Milan communicated his resolution in favor of peace to representatives of the Powers Prince Wrede Austrian representative asked how far Prince Milan was authorized to represent the Prince of Montenegro Prince Milan answered that he had no direct written power but, from communication had with the Prince on the subject he thought he could speak for him also This reply was only calculated to bring out prominently the informality of Montenegro's demand by proxy which if not cleared up might have led to all sorts of misunderstandings The point has been however, cleared up since by Prince Nicholas asking the powers directly to support the demands by Prince Milan for both This communication was made to Austria and Prussia which alone are represented in Montenegro with a request to communicate it to the other powers It seems that Prince Nicholas is as anxious to treat as Prince Milan for on Tuesday he urged the subject expressing apprehension that Dervish Pasha was about to invade Montenegro and anxiety to have this prevented by influence of the powers as after the failure of Servians further operations would only lead to useless bloodshed and devastation These considerations seem also to have induced him to order his commanders in Herzegovina to act strictly on the defensive

LONDON, Aug 31.—A dispatch from Ragusa says Dervish Pasha has reached Podgoritza with a strong detachment of Egyptians and Arabians The Turkish force at Podgoritza is now formidable it has 54 guns The Prince of Montenegro's headquarters and army is between Danilograd and Grahova.

BULGARIAN ATROCITIES

But those who would know exactly what has been passing, must read the Daily News correspondent's account which will lose none of its influence at all events with Americans when it is stated that he is traveling with Mr Schuyler, who has scarcely settled himself down in his new office at Constantinople before he is called upon to investigate this horrible series of atrocities The correspondent accompanied by Mr Schuyler visited the town of Batok on the 1st of August and I cannot do better than give in his own words the details of what he saw He says

On approaching the town on a hill there were some dogs They ran away and we found on this spot a number of skulls scattered about and one ghastly heap of skeletons with clothing I counted from the saddle a hundred skulls picked and licked clean all of women and children We entered the town On every side were skulls and skeletons charred among the ruins or lying entire where they fell in their clothing There were skeletons of girls and women with long brown hair hanging to the skulls We approached the church There these remains were more frequent until the ground was literally covered with skeletons skulls and putrefying bodies in clothing Between the church and school there were heaps The stench was fearful We entered the churchyard The sight was more dreadful The whole churchyard for three feet deep was festering with dead bodies partly covered hands limbs and heads projecting in ghastly confusion The hands heads and feet of children of three years of age and girls with heads covered with beautiful hair The church was still worse The floor was covered with rotting bodies quite uncovered I never imagined anything so fearful There were [illegible] bodies in the churchyard and church We were obliged to hold tobacco to our noses In the school a fine building 200 women and children had been burnt alive All over the town there were the same scenes In some places heaps of bodies buried in shallow holes had been uncovered by the dogs The banks of the little stream were covered with bodies Many bodies had been carried to Tartar Bazardjik a distance of [illegible] miles The town had 9 000 inhabitants It now numbers 1 200 Many who escaped had returned recently weeping and moaning over their ruined homes Their sorrowful wailing could be heard half a mile off Some were digging out the skeletons of loved ones A woman was sitting moaning over three small skulls with hair clinging to them, which she had in her lap.

Gold Bank and Trust Co Affairs.

From statements of directors of the National Gold Bank and Trust Company it would appear that Davis and Thompson formerly president and cashier of that institution were playing a bold game to win at the time of the bank's suspension They had jointly purchased what is known as the Halleck building corner Sansome and Halleck streets and were fitting it up having already completed negotiations with the C P R R Co for its purchase by that company at a price that would have enabled Davis and Thompson to refund the amount they had surreptitiously taken from the bank vault to pay for their purchase and retain themselves nearly all they had paid for it The collapse of the Bank of California and the suspension of the Trust Company broke up the negotiations left the property on their hands and brought their game to a close The directors also claim that Thompson broke faith with them in disposing to other parties of property in Oakland to the value of $85 000 which he had agreed to turn over to the bank to indemnify it for his defalcation

PADDLING HIS OWN CANOE

FOUR THOUSAND MILES IN A FIFTEEN FOOT BOAT—THE OARSMAN'S STORY

Jas R Gay the Boston oarsman who undertook to row to Detroit by way of the Atlantic coast the Gulf of St Lawrence the St Lawrence river the Lakes Ontario Canadian canals and Detroit river within 120 days arrived at Detroit last Tuesday, 100 days out from Boston Mr Gay says about $20 000 was wagered on the feat and that while he himself had no bets on the result he was to obtain $2 000 for winning The trip was comparatively uneventful with the exception of being once capsized in the Atlantic and once in the Gulf of St Lawrence but he managed to right his boat in both instances and to proceed on his journey with no further damage than a thorough wetting On his way up the Atlantic ocean he met the Countess of Dufferin and was advised by Captain Culbert to turn back which as the result proved the gallant mariner declined to do

Frequently along the route through the interior waters, Captain Gay was made much of by admiring citizens and once he took in a charming Canadian schoolmarm as a passenger who accompanied him during a day's journey Arriving in Detroit he was taken in charge by a special committee and abundantly feasted after which he returned to Boston

Captain Gay's boat is a double ender, fifteen feet long and with its equipments weighed about 160 pounds "I began business, he said, "with a coal oil stove frying pan four cans of meat six of sardines, eight cans of fresh bread, four of condensed milk, two pounds of coffee one of tea, five pounds of sugar four pounds of corn meal, and four pounds of pork besides peaches, oysters, lobsters and other fruits; a sextant, a chronometer spirit compass, anchor, besides a trunk with some clothes, etc." His trunk was so damaged by the first capsizing that he put it off at the next landing place and his stock of provisions, of course, was frequently replenished The boat is propelled with oars fastened with a pin in the gunwale of the boat The oars are therefore rigid, and incapable of being feathered Four pairs of oars were worn out on the voyage When he landed in Detroit Mr Gay had with him only a small valise containing toilet articles a kedge anchor, boat cushions, a paddle and a pair of oars

The man himself is described as "well built about five feet eight inches in hight and weighing, one hundred and sixty four pounds He has a well shaped good sized head with a good portion of dark brown, almost black hair A high forehead projecting considerably, rises straight from a pair of sharp, light blue eyes, a well-shaped rather large nose, overhangs a light sandy mustache which partly conceals an ever smiling mouth Rather high cheek bones square firmly set jaws and a nut brown complexion complete a face that has firmness and determination in every feature" He served in the Twenty third regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers throughout the war, and lost two fingers from his right hand at the battle of Lookout Mountain. He is a musician by profession, and is a member of Bend's Band, in Boston—N Y World

FLOWER WORSHIPPERS

Dr George Birdwood writes to the Athenæum Very beautiful is the Persian's love of flowers In Bombay I found the Parsees use the Victoria Gardens chiefly to walk in, to eat the air"—"to take a constitutional," as we say Their enjoyment of it was heartily animal The Hindu would stroll unsteadily through it, attracted from flower to flower, not by its form or color, but its scent He would pass from plant to plant, snatching at the flowers and crushing them between his fingers and taking stray sniffs at the ends of his fingers as if he was taking snuff His pleasure in the flowers was utterly sensual Presently, a true Persian, in flowing robe of blue, on his head his sheep-skin hat,

Black glossy, curled, the fleece of Kar Kul

would saunter in and stand and meditate over every flower he saw, and always as if half in vision And when at last the vision was fulfilled, and the ideal flower he was seeking found he would spread his mat and sit before it until the setting of the sun and then pray before it and fold up his mat again and go home And the next night, and night after night until that particular flower faded away, he would return to it and bring his friends in ever increasing troops to see it, and sit and sing and play the guitar or lute before it, and they would all together pray there, and after prayer still sit before it, sipping sherbet and talking the most hilarious and shocking scandal late into the moonlight and so again and again every evening until the flower died. Sometimes by way of a grand finale the whole company would suddenly rise before the flower and serenade it together with an ode from Hafiz and depart

HOW ELECTRICITY TRAVELS.—How long does it take to transmit a message through the Atlantic cable? The New York Journal of Commerce has been investigating this question, and simple as it looks at first sight there are many singular and interesting points in the answer When the electricity is applied to the cable at one end two-tenths of a second pass before any effect is felt at the other end, and three seconds are consumed before the full force of the current is in action The first signal is felt in four tenths of a second but the following ones go through more rapidly As many as seventeen words have been sent over the Atlantic cable in one minute, fifteen can usually be sent under pressure, and twelve words a minute is a good working rate Messages of twelve words have been sent all the way from New York to London in two minutes A fact not yet explained by the scientists is that the electricity does not move as rapidly from New York to London as in the opposite direction.

The Hon D W Voorhees is another roaring inflationist, who is satisfied that the St Louis platform and candidates represent soft money and anti resumption In a recent speech he thus rejoiced Two years ago this right hand of mine wrote the Democratic platform for Indiana with which we triumphed by 17 000 majority and which proclaimed that we were in favor of specie payments only when the business interests of the people required it and that all laws and parts of laws in contravention to that purpose should be repealed They have been repealed and stand repealed to day The National Democratic platform adopted at St Louis declares the same thing in substance It declares that we will delay the day of resumption until by rigid economy wise financial management and proper preparation the people will not be injured but will be benefited thereby I take back not one word I have said on the finance question and I find but little if any difficulty in harmonizing my views and position with the platform of the National Democratic party at St. Louis

CATTLE RAISING EAST OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS

As we approach the Rocky Mountains the outposts of a hundred herds of tame cattle are visible on either side The rich nutritious grasses with which the plains are covered are here found in all their excellence, and the territory east of the Black Hills north to the North Platte river and south to the Gulf of Mexico now sustains millions of cattle and sheep All around Cheyenne and Denver are the ranches of stockmen—men engaged in growing cattle sheep horses and mules for market No hay is cut for any of these animals except sheep and the cattle kept for winter use Winter and summer they live on the native grasses although it is sometimes hard for them to subsist through the winter storms Were it not for fierce winds that then denude the summits of the ridges while filling the hollows between them with snow, the wretched creatures would perish from starvation As it is thousands of them do annually starve and freeze at the climaxes of tempests so bitter that they have compelled even the buffaloes to approach blockaded locomotives at night and lean up against them for warmth and shelter.

The experience of Mr. Iliff, the "Cattle King of the Plains, whose great ranch in Northern Colorado includes hundreds of square miles of bottom and upland ranges, is typical of the whole During the severe winter of 1871 72 there were deep snows that remained a long time, and the storms were incessant. In the midst of them Mr Iliff visited his ranch and found his cattle dying and scattered by thousands. In spite of all he could do, less than half of them were recovered and those had strayed at springtime into two different States and four different Territories More than $20,000 were expended in efforts to find them At last, in the spring of 1874 5,000 undiscovered head were charged to profit and loss Could these have been sold the previous fall, they would have brought at least $18 a head—a total of $90 000

Yet the Cattle King and many cattle princes beside him, make money from cattle raising on the plains, for they learn much by experience, and the demand is great enough to warrant all their risks. Mr Iliff has now more than 26,000 head of cattle, of all ages, sizes and conditions. Nearly 5 000 calves were branded on his ranch last year, and he sold about the same number of four year-old steers and fat cows. At the average selling price of $32 a head net, 4,000 head brought him $128,000 He employs from 12 to 35 men to take care of his immense herds in summer By the introduction of thoroughbred Durham bulls the herds are rapidly graded up, and he estimates the increase outside of purchases and sales, to be about 70 per cent per year Besides the cattle raised on his ranch he deals largely in Texas and Indian cattle, and last season advertised for 20,000 head of cattle to be delivered during the driving months of 1876. If he does not obtain the number from Texas he expects to supply the deficiency with Oregon and Montana cattle which are beginning to come East.—N. Y. World!

A WEDDING IN THE SURF.—The Providence Journal has a most romantic story of a marriage in the surf Among the recent summer guests at the Narragansett Pier have been a wealthy resident of Baltimore his blooming daughter, and a companion, whose office it was to stand guard over her young mistress, and intercept any letters that she might send to a young gentleman at the South. Before a fortnight had elapsed, a dainty little missive was in the Baltimore mail bag The young gentleman packed his valise and set out for Rhode Island The father was forbidden by his physician to bathe in the surf, and his daughter's companion hated salt water and usually sat on the rocks when her charge donned a bathing suit. While the happy girl was in the water, her lover suddenly appeared before her, swimming like a duck, and proposed that they should be married the next day in the breakers. She said yes. The next noon the lovers, a clergyman, and two witnesses, formed a little group in the surf further out than the other bathers dared to go The marriage ceremony had to be suspended every few seconds on account of the breakers, and a laugh broke from the lips of the girl when the clergyman solemnly gave full opportunity for the forbidding of the banns Everybody noticed how gay she was at dinner that day, and her father thought She's forgot that Baltimore upstart already". A few hours later he was undeceived Then the tempest raged again but a lawyer's cool counsel finally prevailed The bridegroom lingered a few days and then went back to Baltimore, where next October the participants of the Comedy in the Surf will reappear in the same characters in the drama of a Grand Wedding before the eyes of the world

RUSSIAN TYPE SETTER.—A Russian inventor M Alissoff of St. Petersburg, shows a type-writer which for excellence of mechanical structure cleanness of impression and ability to do printing in different characters, leaves the American type-writer far behind It cannot be made to work nearly as fast however as its American rival, and as speed is what most people seek in such a machine, it is doubtful if it will ever come into extensive use Mr Alissoff says that he first turned his attention to making a machine for speed but finding by observation that few men can think faster than they can write with pen or pencil, he concluded that such an invention was not what was needed, but something that would make as accurate and legible "copy" as a printed page In this undertaking he has fully succeeded His machine writes in the Russian and English characters makes capitals, small capitals figures signs punctuation points and all the French accents. As the types are movable, it can be arranged to print Greek Hebrew or any other written language. The manner of working it is to move a lever on a dial to the letter desired and make the impression with the foot upon a pedal The speed is about that of ordinary writing Mr Alissoff also exhibits an invention for photolithographing music. The staves, notes and signs, printed on thin paper are kept in small boxes from which they are taken and pasted upon a large plate of glass regularity being secured by lines on cardboard at the back of the pane Thus the composition is built up much more rapidly than could be done with types. A negative is then taken of any size desired—the light passing through the glass—and when transferred to stone the printing is done by the usual process

Now that coal is becoming scarcer and more costly peat and turf are receiving more attention as fuel while petroleum—though scarcely yet regarded as a safe fuel—is also coming in to notice for heating purposes In various parts of Europe peat is now and has for a long time past been almost the only fuel used and within a comparatively recent period great efforts have been made to utilize it advantageously for this purpose in the United States and Canada In its natural state, or merely air dried it has been much employed although of very inferior heating power to coal but when pulped and compressed as is the process carried out so successfully in some countries as in Holland and in Italy it has been found capable of competing with coal and wood on equal terms, both for steam production and household use Charred peat has also become an important article of consumption as a substitute for wood charcoal and coke The more general employment of peat by some improved method of preparation rendering it more readily and profitably available is looked forward to and when it is considered what vast peat tracts exist as an almost total waste in different parts of the world a source of vast industry and wealth would appear to be simply awaiting the due application of ingenuity and enterprise

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 1, 1876.

THE CAMPAIGN IN OREGON.

In another column will be found a call for a meeting of citizens to organize a Hayes and Wheeler club, to promote the election of the Republican candidates for President and Vice President. The meeting is to be held at the Court House on Saturday night, September 2d.

It is to be hoped that all persons who favor the election of Hayes and Wheeler will be in attendance. It is to be hoped also that the persons who are accustomed to absent themselves from political meetings will recognize their duty as citizens and give this meeting the support and countenance of their presence, even if they do not afterwards become members of the proposed club. The contest in which we are about to engage actively will be close, and the issue, especially in this State, is by no means certain. Under the leadership of Mr. Tilden, who is one of the ablest and most adroit of politicians, the Democracy, all over the country, will be guided with consummate ability and nothing will be left untried to en[illegible] its triumph. The energy and skill which won for Mr. Tilden the nomination at St. Louis, in spite of bitter opposition, will be exerted to the very utmost to secure an election in November. It will not do to underrate the strength of the Democracy in this State or to omit [illegible] which can properly be done to [illegible] their efforts to carry the State. It is [illegible] that they will do all in their power [illegible] is undoubtedly their right, to elect [illegible] and give the electoral vote of [illegible] to Mr. Tilden. To prevent this, [illegible] who desires the election of [illegible] Hayes and Wheeler, should be [illegible] and doing. There is no time to waste now,—no effort to be spared—if victory is desired in November. Every man [illegible] take hold and work and push along the good cause as vigorously as possible. Many a battle has been lost for [illegible] of active, energetic effort—let not [illegible] be one. Turn out Saturday night [illegible] the campaign in good style and keep it going.

THE NEW SULTAN.

The reign of the late Sultan was a brief [illegible] not a happy one. He [illegible] not to have been the man for the [illegible] and has been forced to give way to [illegible] and, as it is said, an abler man. [illegible] of Murad Effendi was not [illegible]. More than three months [illegible] Turkish gentleman, in conversation [illegible] of one of the Lon[illegible] his downfall, saying [illegible] prior to his elevation to [illegible] had so impaired his intellect [illegible] his constitution that neither [illegible] nor his body would stand the [illegible] upon it. What effect this [illegible] of rulers will have upon the future [illegible] Turkey can scarcely be foretold. [illegible] was the opinion of those who [illegible] have been the best informed that [illegible] would favor a settlement [illegible] difficulties between Turkey and [illegible] provinces. He is the representative, it is [illegible], of the better element [illegible], and if he should be guided by [illegible] of England, a better era [illegible] dawning for his unhappy country. [illegible] it is hard to believe this. [illegible] seems to have gone [illegible] the reign of the Moslem in [illegible] shall terminate. Undoubtedly it [illegible] long since have done so but for the [illegible] upon the successor [illegible] Turk in the p[illegible]ion of his territory. Possibly if the Danubian Provinces [illegible] combine with Servia and with [illegible] these nations might be able to re[illegible] portion of the disputed country. [illegible] each of these is at variance with and [illegible] of the other, and will not, perhaps [illegible] unite. Besides, Russia stands [illegible] and a great deal more than willing [illegible] Turkey in Europe to her own [illegible]. To this all Europe objects, [illegible] war if it should be attempted. One thing, however, is pretty certain [illegible] thing must be done, and that [illegible] thing may bring on a great war.

[illegible] ago the managers of the Centennial [illegible] tried the experiment of setting apart a day on which the public might [illegible] to see the great exhibition on payment of half the usual fare. The experiment [illegible] ful one. The number of [illegible] was very much larger than [illegible] the other days—so much larger [illegible] to be noticed by all—one correspondent [illegible] king that on that day alone did the [illegible] seem to be filled. The London Exhibition of 1852 tried the same experiment [illegible] the same result. The Great Northern Railway, running from London to Edinburgh, on one occasion announced that for a certain [illegible] the fares would be diminished fifty per cent. The increase of travel during that period was so marked that the board of directors resolved to keep the fares permanently at the reduced rate, and the result was the gross [illegible] of the road were augmented and the net profits greater than ever before. It would be well for the managers of the Centennial to appoint other days, say one or two in each [illegible], on which the public might be admitted for half-price.

Has Gov. Seymour accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York? Mr. Seymour says he will not; but one of the committee sent to interview him says he will. If Mr. Tilden succeeds in inducing Mr. Seymour to accept the nomination, as he evidently is very anxious for him to, it will be a most excellent piece of business for him, as Gov. Seymour has, and deserves to have, great popularity and influence in New York. But Gov. Seymour will hardly accept, after so emphatically declining, and Mr. Tilden will probably be obliged to look elsewhere for a coadjutor in the work of carrying his State.

The news from the Black Hills seems to indicate that what Gen. Sherman feared has happened and that Sitting Bull's Indians have begun to separate into small marauding bands to harass the whites engaged in mining and stock raising.

Con. Maguire, convicted of defrauding the United States, and sentenced to the penitentiary, has recently been married.

THEN AND NOW.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

In 1861, when folly and madness ruled the hour in the South, President Lincoln, in closing his inaugural address, appealed to the chivalry in these words:

"In your hands, my dissatisfied countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of civil war. The Government will not assail you. You can have no conflict without yourselves being the aggressors. You have no oath registered in Heaven to destroy the Government, while I shall have the most solemn one to 'preserve, protect and defend it.' I am loath to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battle-field and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone, all over the broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

These kindly words from the gentlest of men were met by the Democracy of that day by vigorously waving the blood-red flag of disunion. Roger A. Pryor, who was a Tilden delegate to the recent St. Louis Convention, in an address to the people of Charleston, on the 10th of April, 1861, said:

"Gentlemen, I thank you, especially that you have at last annihilated this accursed union [applause] reeking with corruption and insolent with an excess of tyranny. Thank God it is at last blasted and riven by the lightning wrath of an outraged and indignant people. [Loud applause.] Not only is it gone, but gone forever. [Cries of "you're right," and applause.] In the expressive language of the Scriptures it is water spilt upon the ground that cannot be gathered up. [Applause.] Like Lucifer, Son of the Morning, it has fallen never to rise again. [Continued applause.] For my part, gentlemen, if Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin, to-morrow were to abdicate their offices and were to give me a blank sheet of paper to write the conditions of re-annexation to the defunct Union, I would scornfully spurn the overture. * * * * * * Do not distrust Virginia. As sure as to-morrow's sun will rise over us, just so sure will Virginia be a member of this Southern Confederation. [Applause.] And I will tell you, gentlemen, what will put her in the Southern Confederation in less than an hour by Shrewsbury clock—STRIKE A BLOW. [Tremendous applause.] The very moment that blood is shed Old Virginia will make common cause with her sisters of the South." [Applause.]

In nine days after Fort Sumter was fired on, and Old Virginia [illegible]ded from the Union. The day before the batteries of the rebels opened, ex-Senator Jeremiah Clemens, of Alabama, was in Montgomery, and "met in the office of the Confederate Secretary of War, L. Pope Walker, and there found, engaged in a very excited discussion, Jefferson Davis, C. G. Memminger, Judah P. Benjamin, a Mr. Gilchrist, member of the legislature from Loundes county, Alabama, and a number of other prominent gentlemen. They were discussing the propriety of immediately opening fire on Fort Sumter, to which Gen. Walker, the Secretary of War, appeared to be opposed. Mr. Gilchrist said to him: 'Sir, unless you sprinkle blood in the face of the people of Alabama, they will be back in the old Union in less than ten days.'"

Gen. L. Pope Walker then ordered Beauregard to open his batteries on Fort Sumter, Major Anderson hauled down the United States flag and evacuated the place. Whereupon Gen. Walker said, in a speech, defiantly:

"No man can foretell the events of the war inaugurated, but I will venture to predict that the flag which now floats in the breeze (the secession flag) will before the 1st of May float over the dome of the old capitol at Washington, and if they choose to try Southern chivalry, and test the extent of Southern resources, will eventually float over Faneuil Hall, in Boston."

This Gen. L. Pope Walker is now one of the shining lights of the Democratic party. While Lincoln was doing his utmost to stay the red hand of civil war, this man was doing his best to precipitate a catastrophe that piled upon the people of this country a mountain of debt, and cost the lives of a half million of her bravest sons. He was an oracle then of the secession movement as he is now an oracle of the Tilden and Hendricks "reform" movement. The New York World of August 10th says: "Gen. L. P. Walker, of Alabama, has been making a speech which can have but one effect whoever shall be elected—of invigorating national and patriotic sentiments in the hearts of his hearers and readers." In this speech he dwells largely on the need of reform and the fact that the expenses of the federal government has increased fourfold since 1861. Perhaps the firing on Fort Sumter had something to do with this increased expense. Would it not be a little more honest to concede that the men who compelled the government to keep a million of armed men in the field for four years have just a little responsibility in this matter? The impudence of the ex-rebel leaders is something to be amazed at, if we did not know that before the war they were with equal coolness claiming all the honesty, all the ability and that one Southern man could whip five Yankees; and yet Cobb betrayed the government credit, and Jake Thompson stole the Indian bonds, and Floyd denuded Springfield armory to supply the South with arms, and when it came to battle Southern men found it hard to hold their own man for man.

The World says General Walker "is a born leader;" that he is "statesmanlike" and "patriotic." These are rare qualities, and we may therefore expect in case of a Democratic triumph to see him one of President Tilden's Constitutional advisers. It would be an appointment fit to be made—from a Democratic stand point.

Four years ago if anybody thought of Gov. Hayes for the Presidency it was hardly Gov. Hayes; yet four years ago he said in a speech: "We ought to have a reform of the system of appointments to the civil service, thorough, radical, and complete." This is precisely what Gov. Hayes, being nominated for the Presidency, now says. And a very good opinion it is to stick to. We are a trifle more in need of reform now than we were then, and it is encouraging to find that the Governor has not changed his mind. A President in favor of one term, with his head full of civil service reform, ought to do a good stroke of business.—N. Y. Tribune.

The following persons have been elected to represent the Clackamas county Grangers in the State Grange that meets in Albany on the 20th inst.: Arthur Warner and wife, Edward Forbes and wife, Enoch Skirving and wife, A. R. Shipley and wife.

Silver is not getting to be very much of a drug in the financial market when all the banks of Lisbon have to suspend for the lack of it.—Philadelphia Times.

The new and commodious steamer Geo. W. Elder will leave San Francisco with freight and passengers to-morrow.

Judging from the huge clouds of smoke, a terrible fire must have been raging yesterday in the timber north of East Portland.

The burglaries committed at Forest Grove, Wednesday night, are said to have been the first for the past 18 years in that town.

J. J. Browne, Esq., county school superintendent, is, we regret to announce, at present confined to his room with severe illness.

A stated communication of Portland Lodge No. 55, A. F. and A. M., will be held at Masonic Temple this (Friday) evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Our streets remain in a bad condition, notwithstanding our evening contemporary is giving the Street Commissioner vigorous prods every few days.

The steamer Dayton was placed on the Portland-Monticello line yesterday morning in place of the Onward. The latter boat goes to the boneyard for the present.

The steamer Vancouver brought over a large quantity of staves and stave timber yesterday morning, which will be shipped to San Francisco on the outgoing steamer.

The contract for erecting the new Mechanics' hall upon the State fair grounds, at Salem, has been let to Sears & Chisholm of this city, who will commence work immediately.

The committee selected to obtain signatures for the call to organize a Hayes and Wheeler club at the Court House to-morrow evening, procured five hundred names in two days. Good work.

The new stern-wheel towboat belonging to the O. S. N. Co., was yesterday morning towed up from the boneyard to the Willamet Iron Works wharf, where she will receive her machinery.

The inquiry before the Police Commissioners with regard to the charges preferred against Capt. Collins has been continued until next Monday evening, when the balance of the testimony will be heard.

R. W. Kohler, the clever musician, will be the recipient of a benefit at the Opera House, San Francisco, this evening. Among the volunteers, we note the following: Mrs. M. R. Blake, O. Waud, W. C. Campbell, Mrs. Fulford and Henry Edwards.

An up-town man who heard that suspending a slice of fresh meat near the bed would attract mosquitos from the sleeper, hung a quarter of beef at his window last night. He slept soundly all night, and this morning the meat was missing. They took the bait.

The people residing in the interior towns think the police authorities in Portland are a little too vigilant. The recent vigorous raid on the vagrants and thieves has no doubt had some connection with the recent burglaries committed at McMinnville and Forest Grove.

WILLAMETTE RIVER ITEMS.

There are now four steamers plying on the Upper Willamette river, the W. T. & L. Company having three, the Occident, Orient and the Bonanza, and the Independent line one—the City of Salem.

On her last trip up, last Wednesday, the Occident made the best low water time on record, making the run from Portland to Salem in eleven and a half hours, including locks and landings.

The locks are also being dredged and otherwise improved, the company owning them, no doubt wishing to place no obstacle in the way, but rather inviting outside parties to take their boats through the locks.

The Bonanza runs between Salem and Corvallis, connecting with the Occident which runs between Portland and Salem, and the Orient is on the Dayton route. The City of Salem makes through trips to Corvallis.

The principal difficulty encountered by the boats plying between this city and Salem are the immense snags and sunken logs which are generally found to collect at the very worst places, and are very annoying to pilots.

In spite of the many predictions that there would be a short crop this season, as the harvest progresses farmers become more cheerful over their prospects, and should prices improve any they will realize handsome profits.

The owners and managers of the different ware and storehouses on the river are now receiving grain in great quantities. The Farmers' warehouse at Salem is receiving at the rate of 2,000 bushels per day. The Farmers' warehouse at Lincoln receives about 1,000 bushels daily. Others at more or less convenient stations, in proportionate quantities.

A large number of workmen have been engaged for about two months at Oregon City in repairing and improving the boats which came into possession of the W. T. & L. Co., by purchase from the O. S. N. Co., and everything has been done to make all the steamers of the company serviceable and comfortable. Preparations are being made to put on all the boats required at the beginning and during the shipping season.

The Government contractors for the construction of wing dams are at work at Buena Vista Bar and at Pine Tree Rapids. The work at the former place is conducted with much difficulty, owing to the strong current which washes away not only the sand and rocks put on top of the brush as fast as the men place it in position, but even the piles driven to a depth of five or six feet. So far the work at that place has not improved the channel.

AMUSEMENTS.

The audiences that assemble at New Market Theater are being treated to minstrel performances that improve as they progress. The companies that have preceded the Georgia Minstrels, though excellent, did not give the satisfaction, as troupes, as the one now playing in this city. Wilson, Easton, Hamilton and Crusoe do the funny business to such an extreme that one need have a good sized vest to prevent the loss of buttons. Keenan and Morton's dancing is perfect, and the same may be said of the "Big Four" and Billy Wilson. The music is superior, and the end men on the bones and tambos are immense. "What's dat Goose?" was a side-splitting sketch, and sent all away pleased. More of it to-night.

Downfall in prices; campaign opened; buy your clothing from J. Kohn.

Thousands go there, they do—to Barnes', Central Market. You go.

One of the coolest spots in town is the "Fountain," where Peter Wilhelm holds forth. He keeps the best liquors and cigars, and Weinhardt's best beer. His billiard tables are excellent, and the "Virginius" pool table continues a favorite.

NOTICE.—Mrs. S. Lord, First National Bank building, having abundantly proven her ability to produce a new crop of hair in all stages of baldness, also to check falling of the hair and itching of the scalp, would advise those intending to avail themselves of her treatment to do so without delay, as business will soon take her from the State for some time. Preparations sent to all parts of the country.

Nominations by the President should include Noble Whisky as the national drink, for its acknowledged purity would induce purity in official circles. H. Fleckenstein, sole agent, 147 First st.

The improvement on the Wheeler & Wilson to prevent the oiling of the goods by the dripping of oil down the needle bar, is one of the improvements on the No. 8 which all ladies admire.

PLEASURE BOATS.

JOHN LACHAPELLE, Boat Builder, is prepared to furnish Boats for Sale or Rent at any moment. Boat House, Foot of Pine street.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original, and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints.

Sore eyes speedily relieved. The worst form of piles cured, and the most malignant cancers eradicated root and branch without the use of the knife, or the money refunded.

PILES! NO CURE, NO PAY! PILES!

PILES OR HEMORRHOIDS, FISTULA IN ANO AND OTHER DISEASES OF THE RECTUM CAN BE CURED. Those suffering from the above distressing complaints would do well to call and see me soon, as I expect to go to Olympia in a few days, and visit other points on the Sound. I shall be absent a month or six weeks. Remember if I do not give relief and cure you, I shall not charge you for my services or the medicines used. To persons of limited means I would say, should you suffer because you are poor? My answer is, no! COME AND BE CURED. Rooms on Third street, between Washington and Alder; P. O. Box 247, Portland, Oregon. DR. C. F. WIGHTMAN.

N. B. Persons writing will please enclose stamp for return postage. Diseases of private character specially treated without mercury.

WHILE WAITING FOR A COUGH to go as it came, you are often laying the foundation of some Pulmonary or Bronchial affection. It is better to get rid of a Cold at once by using that sure remedy, Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant, which will cure the most stubborn Cough, and relieve you of all anxiety as to dangerous consequences.

BURGLARS AGAIN.

THREE STORES IN FOREST GROVE ENTERED DURING WEDNESDAY NIGHT BY THIEVES AND ABOUT $1,573 TAKEN.

The usually quiet town of Forest Grove was thrown into a state of commotion yesterday morning by the unwelcome discovery that during Wednesday night three stores had been entered and the safes broken open. The burglars first entered the store of Samuel Hughes through the back door. They broke off the knob of the safe and drove the combination back with a blacksmith sledge-hammer and punch. The door was then forced open and between $500 and $600 taken away. From there the thieves went to the store of Hon A. Hinman. They broke open a window and opened the door from the inside, the key being in the hole. In the same manner as at Hughes' store, the door of the safe was forced open. About $500 was taken away. The burglars left in the store the punch which they had used in breaking open the safe, and some other instruments. Mr. W. D. Hoxter's store was next entered through a back door. The burglars failed to open the safe by a punch and a sledge hammer. They then took some powder from the store and used their own fuse. Only a partial explosion resulted, which did not blow the safe door open. Determined not to be frustrated, the burglars procured an axe, with which they cut through the back of the safe, and were enabled to get at the contents. Mr. Hoxter thinks his loss is about $473. There were $1,283 in checks on the First National Bank in the safe, but the thieves did not take any—only scattered them about over the floor. While in the store they took a box of his best cigars. They seemed to have suspended operations and taken a rest for a while, during which they smoked several of the cigars and took about two-thirds away when they left.

Mr. Hoxter thinks some of them must have been frequenters of his store. He kept a dog in the store, which they must have pacified in some way, as he made no noise.

Tracks of a man in moccasins were followed from Hughes' to Hinman's and thence to Hoxter's. No moccasin tracks were found afterwards, and the wearer is supposed to have changed them for boots.

Tracks have been found on the main stage road to Cornelius, evidently made early yesterday morning, with a peculiar hole in the sole. At Cornelius a man was seen to come out of the school house, who is suspected. He was a well-digger, and had been employed in Forest Grove. He left that place with the avowed purpose of digging wells at Hillsboro, but did not go there at all.

A letter was picked up near the school house written in signs and symbols used by burglars; but in it were the words, "We made a good haul on Friday night. The officers are on the wrong scent." It was addressed to a friend in this city. The officers are on the track of the suspected party.

One of the anomalies of the centennial year is the establishment of a monarchical organ in Chicago, known as The Imperialist. It takes the ground that universal suffrage in this country has degenerated into unbridled license, and that the panacea for the evils of the time is a "stern, simple and stable centralized government." The candidate for imperial honors is named. It is William Washington, of Nashville, Tenn., a grand-nephew of the head of the family; and Charles Francis Adams, Fitzhugh Lee, and Colonel Patterson Bonaparte are mentioned as fit persons to rally around him as the chiefs of a hereditary aristocracy. Emperor William Washington I, has this nice little send-off: "He has spent many years in Europe, where his illustrious character and qualifications have made him an ornament to the most exclusive circles of the aristocracy."

AN EMIGRANT'S STORY.

Years ago, before the railroad or the overland stage route, or even the overland pony express was thought of, a solitary family of seven persons, accompanied by three men started from Illinois to cross the continent. They had wagons, mules, provisions and household furniture in abundance.

The family was of good origin. It consisted of the grandfather, father, mother, three daughters, (the eldest aged nineteen, being very attractive) and two little muscular sons. Of the three men outside the family, two were past their prime. The youngest, the lover of the eldest girl of the party, and by her beloved, was befriended by her grandfather, her sisters, and both her brothers, encouraged by his elderly male companions and cordially hated, on account of an hereditary feud, by the girl's father, (the chief of the expedition) and his wife.

One night the young man was missed in camp. So arbitrary was the rule the chief pioneer had established that no allusion was made to the circumstance during his silence at the evening meal. Next morning the girl was gone. Still the father said nothing; nor did the mother make one sign. The rest of the train were silent and subdued. Toward noon it was noticed that the grandfather, whose affection for the absent girl was well known to amount to devotion, had likewise quitted the camp, carrying his weapons. This discovery was the signal for the pioneer's action. Shouldering his rifle, he commanded his two sons to stay in camp, and then started off in an eastward direction at a pace that indicated his perfect knowledge of the whereabouts of the absentees. The rest of the story I give as closely as I can recollect it in the language of one of the two elderly men who soon left the camp on the trail of the departing pioneer:

"We didn't like the looks of old Sam'l," said the narrator, "and so we follered him. It was about a seven or eight mile stretch, and just afore we come to the place we begun to sort o' suspicion where it was. It was a bluff like. We walked fast, and got around where we could see what was goin' on, afore old Sam'l come up. It seemed that old Sam'l, the second night previous, had 'ticed young —— off'n the trail around by this 'ere bluff and shot him through the chist and left him for a goner. The girl had watched which way they went, and when the boy didn't come back next day she skedaddled the next night. So when we got there she'd got him down by the brink of a little water hole, and there they both was, she a holdin' his head on her arm and keepin' the sun off his face with her apron. Pretty soon old Sam'l come along the other side o' the bluff. He looked around a second or so, and got his eye on the gal. I seen him raise his rifle and p'int it at her, and I raised mine and p'inted it at him. We both fired at the same time, for just as he keeled over I looked, and the girl was a-lyin' face down, flat across ——'s body. The old grand-daddy—he just then riz up 'longside o' the water hole. But I didn't stop to see any more. Me and my partner both lit out, and only stopped long enough to git away with our blankets and a little grub. I never heard of any one o' that fam'ly sence."—N. Y. World.

THOS. A. SCOTT.—Col. Scott is a handsome man, with grayish hair, and the keenest eyes ever set in human head. They seem to notice nothing, but they see everything. The colonel is a rather unobtrusive man, though decided and abrupt in manner. He is chary of words, save to his intimates; but among these he is, like Macaulay, a great talker. When at Long Branch he appears dull and ennuied. He adheres closely to the ladies of his party, and does not evince any special vitality, unless some one refers to his new seaside speculation, Sea Girt, which he designs to become in time the rival of Long Branch. With all his success, Col. Scott as a free American, does not seem to know how to enjoy himself.

A Lesson Taught by Experience.

Among the many valuable lessons taught by experience, there is not one of greater moment to the invalid portion of the community than the following, viz: That alterative treatment is only permanently successful when aided by invigoration. When the functions of the body are disordered, the use of a genial tonic with which corrective properties are combined is the speediest means of regulating them. Such a tonic is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular, as it is the best article of its class. For more than twenty five years it has been used with signal success as a remedy for, and preventive of malarial fevers, as a means of imparting strength to the debilitated, and as a curative of dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, kidney troubles and uterine weakness. Not only have multitudes of those whom it has cured borne testimony in its behalf, but it has been repeatedly commended by the medical profession and the press.

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE.

600,000 Acres in

EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO, Grant and Baker counties, and are offered for sale in such sized tracts, not less than 160 acres, as purchasers may desire. Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and settlers seeking homes and low priced land to acquire both on the most reasonable terms. These lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing, or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutritious grass covers the uplands affording the best of pasturage, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay. Living springs and streams water the lands in various directions. The uplands, or rolling lands, can be put into crops with the most satisfactory return. Fruit, particularly peaches, plums, grapes, apples, pears and cherries, as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance. The climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful. Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for traffic; the mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining, and various other pursuits.

Terms, $1 25 per acre and upwards, according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent. on deferred payments.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation, and suitable for grain or vegetables.

946 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs, consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety-four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chained by Mr. Alfred Stanton, of Salem.

2,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river, commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $25 per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed, and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels, to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons, or colony of persons, desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages, as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages, on more favorable terms, than they can ever expect to realize again.
